SIX PROMINENT WRITERS COMING TO BREAD LOAF

Special Lecturers Feature of English School

UNTERMEYER ON LIST

Burton, Willa Cather, Abernethy and Others

Dr. Richard Burton, Miss Willa Cather, Mr. Louis Untermeyer, Dr. Julian W. Abernethy, Dr. Robert D. French, and Mr. Reuben J. Peterson, Jr., are among the special lecturers who will be at the Bread Loaf School of English this summer.

Dr. Burton Minnesota Prof.

Dr. Burton, who is widely known as a poet and critic, will spend a week at Bread Loaf, giving a series of five lectures. Professor Burton has been for years head of the Department of English at the University of Minnesota. He has published several volumes of poetry, the best known of which are perhaps "Dumb in June", his first volume published in 1895, and "Lyrics of Brotherhood". "Masters of the English Novel", published in 1909, and "The New American Drama" (1913) are valuable contributions to criticism.

Dr. Burton received his B. A. from Trinity in 1883 and the degree of Ph. D. from Johns Hopkins in 1888. He was for some years literary editor of The Hartford Courant and was associate editor of Warner's Library of the World's Best Literature. He is the editor of The Living Literature Series and is well known as a lecturer on literary subjects. He has taught at the University of Chicago and at Johns Hopkins University, as well as at the University of Minnesota. Dr. Burton is a prominent member of the National Institute of Arts and Letters and the Drama League of America, of which he was president in 1914-15. In recent years Dr. Burton has divided his interest between poetry and drama.

To Lecture on Writing

Miss Willa Cather, who is one of the most prominent short story writers of to-day, was a student at the University of Nebraska at the time Mrs. Dorothy Canfield Fisher was there. She received the degree of B. A. from that institution in 1895 and the degree of Litt. D. in 1917. Aside from her

NEW INSTRUCTOR ADDED TO FACULTY

Porter Gale Perrin, Dartmouth '17, to Teach English Composition—Now Instructor at Northwestern

Announcement was made today by Professor Duane L. Robinson, secretary to the faculty, of the appointment of Mr. Porter Gale Perrin to an assistant professorship in English Composition. Mr. Perrin is a graduate of Dartmouth College in the class of 1917.

Mr. Perrin was born in Williamstown, Vt., and prepared for college in Tilton Seminary. After graduation he taught one year in the Provincetown, Mass. high school, leaving there for service in the army. At the close of the war he served a part of a year as instructor in the Keene, N. H. high school, and then accepted a position as instructor of English in the University of Maine, where he remained two years, receiving the degree of Master of Arts last June. He is at present instructor of English at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.

TRACK PRACTICE HELD DAILY DURING RECESS

A squad of about twelve track men remained in Middlebury over the vacation and practiced daily, both in the gymnasium and on Porter Field, when the weather permitted. The track team is rapidly rounding into shape in preparation for the first meet which will be held May 6 with St. Lawrence at Canton. Tryouts will be held at the end of this week and the beginning of next. Coach Brown plans to extend the tryouts over several days in order that the new men may have the opportunity to compete in as many events as possible. The events which will be run off this week will probably include the mile, the 440 yard dash, the 100 yard dash, the broad jump and the shot put.

SAXONIAN TO MAKE FIRST BOW TUESDAY

Promise Well Balanced Literary Magazine

President Moody Writes Feature Article on "Form or Substance."

A well balanced assortment of prose and poetry, of light and serious writing will be contained in the first number of The Saxonian, which appears next Tuesday, according to an announcement by E. S. Kalin '23, editor, yesterday. One of the very gratifying results of the early canvass for contributions has been the large number of articles submitted which enabled the editors to maintain a high literary standard and at the same time treat with a wide variety of subjects.

President Moody Contributor

The feature article of the April issue will be a discussion of the editorial policy of a new paper entitled, "Form or Substance," by President Paul Dwight Moody. The writer is especially qualified to deal with this subject by reason of his several years' connection with the Doran Publishing Company of New York, in the capacity of literary adviser.

Other contents of the number will be "Gems," a poem, by Miss Florence K. Bolger '24; "John Godfrey Saxe," poem, by F. Rich '25; "Social Opportunities of a Democracy," light essay, by H. H. Eddy '23; "Happiness," poem, by Miss Doris K. Upton '24; "Foolish Questions," light essay, by C. E. Rogers '23; "Contemporary Politics," essay, by Murray Adams '22; "Richard Burton," essay, by Miss V. Dole '23; "A Liberal Interpretation," short story, by K. A. Brautigam '22; "Poe", poem, Miss K. Bolger '23; "Louis Untermeyer," literary criticism, by Alice Kirkpatrick '22.

To Solicit Alumni Support

In carrying out the policy of the paper of catering to widely diversified interests, editors of "The Saxonian" will soon solicit articles from members of the graduate body. The almost exclusive devotion of the first

WHITE AND DAVISON TO GO ON SABATICAL YEAR

Professors White and Davison will be given their sabatical year beginning next September. Professor White will sail in the fall for Naples and will tour Italy and possibly Egypt. He will return via France and England, arriving here just before the opening of college in 1924. Professor Davison's plans are as yet undecided.

BASEBALL TEAM WINS ONLY ONE GAME ON TRIP

Providence College Lone Victim of 'Varsity

OUTLOOK PROMISING

Coach not Discouraged Over Showing Made on Trip

The Middlebury 'varsity baseball team was able to win only one out five starts on the first trip of the season during Easter vacation. Following successive defeats by Boston College, Tufts and Harvard, the Vermonters finally emerged victorious over Providence College only to lose by a close margin on the following day to Northeastern. The game scheduled with Williams at Williamstown Saturday had to be postponed on account of rain.

Coach Morey, however, is not discouraged, and says that "the trip should be considered as just what it was—a spring training trip" and with regard to the showing of the team as made in the various games he was of the opinion that "the club is a better club than that we had at any time last year."

Shut Out at Boston College

The opening game in Boston with the Boston College nine on Monday, April 10, started out looking as though it would be a white wash for the Bostonians. Hulihan, Middlebury's ace, who occupied the slab fanned the first two men to face him and forced the third to pop. The second inning Philips, B. C.'s star left fielder, led off with a single followed in rapid succession by four others who collected five runs for the local nine. The game ended with Boston College on the strong end of a 14-0 score.

MISS YOUNG AGAIN ON TEACHING STAFF

Returns to Middlebury to be Assistant Professor of Physical Education Here Next Year

Professor D. L. Robinson announced this morning that Miss Marion L. Young had been appointed assistant professor of Physical Education to take up her duties with the re-opening of college next September. Miss Young was formerly an instructor in Physical Education, having full charge of the work in the Women's College. During the current year she has been head of the department of Physical Education in the Rhode Island College of Education at Providence, R. I.

Miss Young was graduated from the New Haven Normal School of Gymnastics in 1907, following which she entered the summer sessions at Chautaugua, N. Y. During 1908 she taught in the New York State Training School for girls at Hudson, N. Y. From 1910 to 1915 Miss Young was supervisor of Physical Education in the Auburn, N. Y., public schools. For two years Miss Young was an instructor in Mt. Holyoke College, and for a year director of Physical Education Women's Gymnasium at the University of Nebraska. In 1918 she was appointed instructor of Physical Education at Middlebury.

The eminent musician Sergei Rachmaninoff upon his recent arrival in this country exclaimed at the marvelous musical progress which had taken place since his last visit ten years previous. This sudden upspringing has its virtues and its defects. The virtues are evident; the defects are more subtle.

The art of music is one which must mellow and ripen with the years, like the art of writing or painting, and too quick development is apt to stress the more obvious aspects, while neglecting the more delicate and refined issues of the art. Such has been the case in America. We have our huge orchestras equal to any in the world, and we have magnificently talented artists, but we can boast of no string quartet like the Flonzaley's. In Europe, conservatories abound in ensembles, founded for the purpose of playing the great septets, trios and quartets of the great masters. But not until Miss Carolyn Beebe founded the New York Chamber Music Society could America pronounce her musical development equal to that of Europe.

In this organization is founded the hope of the musical prophets of our day, for it is only by such an ensemble of artists, devoted only to their work, with their sole purpose being its familiarization, that true musical culture can be propogated. H. G. O.

ELEVEN COLLEGE PRESIDENTS VOTE SPORT CHANGES

Agree to Ban High-Paid Seasonal Coaches

TAKE DRASTIC STEPS

Seek to Remove Possibility of Professionalism

Eleven college and university presidents of New England and New York adopted resolutions at a meeting held in Springfield, Mass., on April 10, to abolish seasonal coaches and establish coaches as regular members of the faculty, with the same rate of pay as other faculty members, with permanent residence at the colleges during the academic year, and with such other functions beside coaching either in the physical education department or other departments as the capacities of the coaches may make possible. The resolutions also provide that the coaches shall be procured in the same manner as other faculty members and officers are chosen at the respective institutions. These are the most sweeping changes in intercollegiate sports that have been made for many years.

Provide For Appointment

The new rules further stipulate that the coaches shall be paid "by the college and only by the college," and that "they shall have the same permanence of appointment as other members of the faculty." A vote, calling for a continuation of such meetings of the presidents, and a motion that an "association of college presidents be formed for considering the best interests of athletics," was adopted unanimously. The new association will consist of Presidents Roberts of Colby; Ferry of Hamilton; Moody of Middlebury; Ogilby of Trinity; Cousens of Tufts; Richmond of Union; Bailey of Vermont; Meiklejohn of Amherst; Shaklin of Wesleyan; Sills of Bowdoin; and Garfield of Williams.

The resolution providing for the appointment of the coaches says "that, recognizing that inter-collegiate athletics are at present a part of the work of the department of physical education, we recommend to our respective faculties and trustees that beginning with the Fall of 1923 all coaches be appointed in the same way as are members of the faculty and other officers of the institution."

To Abolish Seasonal Coaches

The resolutions regarding the abolition of seasonal coaches read "that we further recommend that as soon as it is practicable, and if possible, by the Fall of 1923, seasonal coaches be replaced by coaches who are members of the faculty as defined in the following terms:—

1. They shall be paid by the college and only by the college.
2. They shall be in residence throughout the year.
3. They shall have other duties in the physical training department or in some other department in addition to their coaching.
4. They shall be paid at the same rate as the other members of the faculty.
5. They shall have the same permanence of appointment as other members of the faculty.
6. They shall be selected in the same way as other members of the faculty."

These resolutions will, in the opinion

College Presidents Step In

The meeting of eleven New England college presidents at Springfield last week to abolish seasonal coaches and to give athletic directors the status of faculty membership commends itself from many points of view. Whether or no it proves to be the constructive, progressive step in the development of college athletics that its sponsors' claim for it, this meeting will at least make for closer cooperation and unity of relationship among the institutions represented.

It is safe to assume that college athletics in the hands of the executives of these colleges will not suffer from any of the vices of professionlaism which are imputed to it by very severe criticism in certain circles. The presidents are actuated by a sincere desire that college athletics shall be retained as an important factor of instruction, but shall not dominate nor overbalance other college purposes. They are acting with the intention to organize and keep athletics as a means to promote undergraduate discipline and morale without sacrifice of scholarship. Their purposes speak for hearty approval.

We are glad that Middlebury has become affiliated with this movement which embraces the leading smaller New England colleges. Our relationships with Tufts, Amherst, Wesleyan, Williams, Bowdoin, Union, Trinity and Vermont must of necessity be improved by the friendly association of the heads of the respective institutions for a common purpose. This, in itself, would insure profit to Middlebury and to the other colleges concerned.

Wanted:—A Baseball Cage

The unhappy record of the baseball team on the recent Easter trip bears eloquent witness to the evident disadvantages under which a Middlebury nine works in early season. For years Middlebury baseball has been at the mercy of capricious Vermont springs and whether or no the team can enjoy even a few days of outdoor practice before its first game is an annual source of worry and consternation to the coaches. In the vacation trip just ended Middlebury went up against such strong teams as Boston College, Tufts and Harvard after only about two days of outdoor infield practice and almost no outfield workout. The pitchers could hardly be expected to be in shape after the continued cold weather that confronted them here, and as a result the team suffered defeat in four out of five contests. The record is not an inspiring one but it is such that under existing conditions, must be expected. It merely serves to indicate that it is becoming increasingly evident that either Middlebury must shorten its season and crowd games into May and June or some method must be provided to allow the team to practice regularly regardless of weather. In order that the men may be in good playing condition before the end of spring either the team must take a more extended southern training trip or, what would seem wiser, some provision must be made at home for indoor workouts.

At present the college offers only very limited conveniences for athletic training under cover. The purchase of a baseball cage would necessitate an initial outlay of probably eight or nine thousand dollars but its dividends would accrue in the form of better teams and better physical development of the men. Set up by Porter Field it would in no way intrude upon the scenic beauty of the campus and its possession would be a most valuable addition to the overcrowded and overtaxed gymnasium which now serves for both the men's and women's colleges.

The fact remains that Middlebury needs a new gymnasium—that the McCullough gym is no longer adequate—but to erect an edifice such as would meet the demands of the growing college even a few years hence would require more money that the college can well afford at this time. A comparatively cheap baseball cage would greatly relieve present conditions and would be of permanent value. It would at least provide suitable means for regular 'varsity practice indoors and would enable the team to meet southern New England colleges on an equal basis early in the season.

ANNUAL CAMPUS ELECTIONS TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Annual elections of The Campus board will be held tomorrow afternoon at 1:20 p. m. in The Campus office, South Painter. Election is on a competitive basis and the new staff will be chosen by the present board. The candidates eligible for election to the editorship are H. G. Owen '23 and D. H. Parry '24 and those for assistant editor are Misses M. C. Buffum '23, E. Jacobs '23, C. McDonough '23 and A. M. Loukes '23. At the same time selection is made of the editorial staff for 1922-23, the new business staff will also be elected. The following are candidates for election as business manager, R. A. Clark '23 and L. T. Hayward '23. Miss H. I. Benedict '23, is eligible for assistant business manager.

COACH BROWN SELECTS GIRLS' "ALL-MIDD" TEAM

The girls' "All-Midd" teams for basketball and volley ball have been chosen by Coach Arthur N. Brown. The four class team captains and the head of the sport were named. They are as follows: Basketball—Marion Crathern, '22, Dorothy Mackey, '22, Kathryn Rogers '22, Emily Hobbs, '23, Lillian Randquist, '25.

Volley ball—Madeleine Gaylor, '22, Elsie Scott, '22, Alice Ladd, '22, Emily Hobbs, '23, Beulah Scott, '23, Marjorie Currier, '24, Aldura Hatch, '25.

"M C"s were awarded to members of the two "All-Midd" teams at a meeting of the Women's Athletic Association. At this meeting Kathryn Rogers, '22, received a Midd sweater, for having attained her fifty W. A. A. points.

Dr. John M. Thomas, former president of Middlebury and now president of Pennsylvania State College, visited in town last Tuesday night. President Thomas preached at Wellesley College Sunday, April 9.

CONCENTRATION

Being a Student's Honest Record of an Hour in Starr Library

11:30 Steps out blithely from classroom, resolved to put in one worthwhile hour in the Library.

11:31 Staggered by friend's proffered cigarette, arrests headlong march in order to accept same and, incidentally, to win commendation for worthy intent.

11:42 Arrived at Library, pauses for moment at doorway to scan faces of fellow-students and to select favorable location for next hour.

11:43 Slides into chair at table l.c., facing doorway, and commences disturbing business of removing rubbers, etc.

11:45 Recalls reason for coming to Library and dashes over to Fine Arts reserve shelf in search of Vesari's "Lives of Painters", amidst much scuffing, whispering and exchanged glances en route.

11:48 Book obtained, starts return trip to table l.c.

11:50 Settles back into chair with sigh of satisfaction.

11:55 Assignment located and going strong with one page behind him.

12:00 Dinner hour heralded by clanging of St. Mary's bell, which induces student to abandon Vesari momentarily and speculate on nature of lunch program, in the meantime verifying the hour by glancing at Library timepiece and comparing with own.

12:08 Second page of lesson finished when loud alarum from without announces entrance of bevy of coeds whom curiosity impells to follow with eye until seated.

12:15 Another half-page finished when scraping of chairs at far end of room starts general exodus of students for dinner hour.

12:20 Satisfied that no further interruption is imminent, returns to book just as friend enters in search of anyone bound for dining hall.

12:21 Throws down book and joins above, nodding superiorily as friend admiringly declares "I wish I could find time to do as much studying as you do."

LECTURE ON "LONG TRAIL" MONDAY EVE

Captain H. W. Congdon to Show Slides of "The Long Trail From Middlebury South" in Grange Hall

On Monday evening April 24, at 8 p. m., Captain Herbert Wheaton Congdon will give an illustrated lecture in the Grange hall. His subject will be, "The Long Trail South from Middlebury Gap."

Many of the slides are colored, and some of them have been seen before ni Middlebury. They will include scenes on portions of the Long Trail within the Battell Forest and will be of especial local interest, particularly those of Sucker Brook Lodge and vicinity.

The meeting has been scheduled later than usual to accomodate students at the college who might otherwise be prevented from coming because of earlier appointments for the evening. There is no charge for admission and all are cordially invited.

'VARSITY WINS BUT ONE GAME ON EASTER TRIP

Oval featured the second game. The fast Tufts nine handed a 25-2 score to the Middlebury team, with Witham leading off in the pitching box followed by Herzig and finally by Stockwell and Papke, two men who had never before handled a ball at the slab. Kilbride and Hastings gathered the only runs for Middlebury in this contest. The game was called after five and a half innings due to darkness.

Harvard Triumphs

At Soldier's Field the Middlebury nine received their third defeat by a big score when they met the Harvard aggregation losing to the tune of 13-1. Harvard worked Gherke, leading slab artist for the Crimson, and he managed to hold the Vermonters until the final inning when Stockwell reached first via the pedestrian route, continuing his journey when Larrabee threw wild to second, and tallying when Jenkins at second thought it best to take a chance on Klevenow at first rather than make the play at home.

Providence Loses Close Game

Leaving their record of three defeats in Boston behind them the Blue tackeled the Providence College nine in Providence on Thursday and left the field with a victory by an 8-7 score. The game see-sawed back and forth for several innings and ended in real style when the Providence club headed in with a rally in the ninth that netted them two runs, still leaving the Vermonters in the lead by a one run margin. Gallagher, Hastings and Stockwell proved to be the leading artists in collecting runs scoring seven of the eight runs, Witham making the final score in the eighth. The slab work was very good, and the support given the team aided them in collecting their runs.

Close Game With Northwestern

Returning to Boston Friday the final game of the week was played with the Northeastern Tech outfit. Middlebury led off in the first two innings with a run each, Klevenow collecting the first, while Daly gathered the second. In the third Hersig loosened up and Northeastern led in for four tallies. The remainder of the game proved to be uninteresting with the excep-

COMMUNICATION

Appeal for Student Subscriptions to Help in Restoration of University of Louvain in Belgium

To the Editor of The Campus:—

The University of Louvain in Belgium, wantonly destroyed by the Germans in 1914, is being restored by contributions from various nations. This institution was established in 1425 and has ever since been one of the most important of its kind in the world.

The privilege of building the library has been claimed by the United States. Already several hundred Americans have contributed to its erection and work has been begun. To continue the work to a rapid finish it is necessary that $800,000 be raised.

To make the movement successful each student in the 640 universities and colleges is asked to contribute one dollar.

The dedication ceremony will be in 1925, the 500th anniversary of the founding of the University. This building will be the American consecration of the sacrifice which little Belgium made in the first days of the war. Moreover it is to be the monument in Belgium commemorating the sons of our institutions of learning who gave their lives in the great cause and as an everlasting protest against any repetition of such vandalism. It will be the gift of the student body of this country to their comrades of Belgium who are in distress without a workshop. A library is an essential place where one seeks the tools necessary to equip oneself in life's struggle.

The building will be decorated with the insignia or seal of all contributing institutions. Is Middlebury going to have its escutcheon hung upon the walls of the great assembly hall in memory of those of its sons who died or served in the Great War?

We owe it to the good name of our college that we contribute the one dollar per student to help other students less fortunate than ourselves, students who have been the victims of ruthless destruction.

DARTMOUTH GAME AT HANOVER SAT.

Green Next Middlebury Baseball Opponent

Hanover Team Is Strong Aggregation But Middlebury Much Improved

The 'varsity baseball team is handed another tough assignment for Saturday when they invade Hanover to tackle the strong Dartmouth nine, which returned from a southern trip but a short time ago. Middlebury is in much better form following the Easter trip and will be able to give the Green a stiff battle from the start.

Coach Morey stated this morning that he could not tell at the present time who would start on the mound against the Hanover aggregation. It is thought, however, that he will possibly use either Hulihan or Hastings. Hulihan became ill on the Easter trip and left the team for his home on Friday. It is expected that he will return to the line-up in a few days. All the men who took part in the spring trip will probably accompany the team to Hanover.

Dartmouth Fairly Strong

The Dartmouth team has played some of the leading college teams this season, including the strongest college outfits below the Mason-Dixon line. The first game of the trip resulted in a 9-5 defeat for the Green at the hands of Georgetown, while their first victory was over Maryland at Baltimore by a 9-4 tally. An extra inning contest between Catholic University and the Hanover nine passed to the Washingtonians by a 2-1 score. Two defeats by the Naval Academy and the Hampton Roads Naval Base featured the next two games, but the Green turned the tables on the Naval Base nine in the final game winning 10-6.

The real event of the trip was the fifteen inning struggle between Penn and Dartmouth on Franklin Field, the latter losing 6-5. This was the longest game on the West Philadelphia field for 11 years when Princeton and the Quaker teams went a full 17 inning contest. Little difficulty was encountered by the Green when they met the Columbia nine on South Field in New York, the Morningside Heights boys losing to the tune of 16-2.

The probable line-up for Saturday's contest is as follows;

Dartmouth	Middlebury

VOTER ATTENDS CHEMISTRY MEETING

Represents Middlebury at Annual Convention

400 Attend Gathering of American Chemical Society at Birmingham

Professor Perley C. Voter represented Middlebury at the annual convention of the American Chemical Society at Birmingham, Alabama, April 3 to April 7. About four hundred delegates from all over North America attended the convention. They were largely from educational institutions although many industrial firms and government boards and commissions were represented.

The principle addresses of the convention were delivered by Carlisle B. Winslow, director of the U. S. Forest Products Laboratory on the "Development of Forest Products in the South"; William H. Stone, assistant editor of the Manufacturers' record; and M. T. Bogert, past president of the society on "Perfumes". In all 230 papers were read, nine being of a general nature and 222 being divisional, there being thirteen divisions in attendance. Professor Voter attended the division meeting on Chemical education which dealt with the problems of teaching chemistry in college and university.

It developed that the courses offered at Middlebury in the Chemistry department are the equal in quality and results of any of the institutions represented at the convention.

Other Middlebury men who attended the meeting were Professor Eugene C. Bingham '99, head of the department of Chemistry at Lafayette and Charles Fort '15 who is chief chemist for a wood distillation company in Memphis, Tenn.

The Best Business Career
Is what every ambitious senior is thinking about at the present time. Life insurance is one of the best, one of the most desirable, and one of the most satisfactory as a permanent calling.
In assets and volume of business, life insurance is one of the three leading businesses of this country, yet the field is comparatively under-developed. Only 7 per cent of the economic value of human life in the United States is covered by insurance. This gives an idea of the big field still to be worked, especially business insurance for firms and corporations.
As to remuneration: Reports of college graduates who have entered business indicate that life insurance is at the very top as a source of income. Now is the time for you to consider what you are going to do after graduation. If you are ambitious and willing to work hard and are interested to know about life insurance, address experience as a writer of fiction, Miss Cather has had editorial experience with the Pittsburg Daily Leader, and from 1906 to 1912 was Managing Editor of McClure's Magazine when that publication was one of the best friends young writers had. "My Antonia", published in 1918, is one of Miss Cather's best known books. Miss Cather will be at Bread Loaf about two weeks. During that time she will give a series of five lectures on writing.

Untermeyer Coming

Mr. Louis Untermeyer, the well known critic and poet, accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Jean Starr Untermeyer, will visit the School three or four days. Mr. Untermeyer's "The New Era in American Poetry" is one of the best known books of modern criticism. His recent anthologies of "Modern American Poetry" and "Modern English Poetry" are also being widely read. He has published four volumes of verse; and, aside from his own poetry, is well known as a translator of the poems of Heinrich Heine and the odes of Horace. ".... Including Horace" is a delightful volume of translations and parodies. Mr. Untermeyer is a frequent contributor to The New York Evening Post, The New Republic, and The Yale Review. He is by no means merely a literary man. In "Poets of To-day" is this interesting bit of autobiography: "At sixteen I was perilously near being a concert pianist—can still play most of Beethoven, Brahms, and Schumann without threats from the neighbors". A love of poetry and music has characterized many of the great poets, but Mr. Untermeyer is an example of a poet-musician who is also a man of affairs. He is Vice President of the Untermeyer-Robbins Co., manufacturing jewelers, and manager of the chief factory of that company at Newark, N. J. All lovers of modern poetry are familiar with the delicate verse of Mrs. Jean Starr Untermeyer.

Dr. Abernethy Listed

Dr. Julian W. Abernethy is well known to all friends of Middlebury as a member of the Board of Trustees. Dr. Abernethy has now retired from active teaching, but was for many years Principal of Berkeley Institute, Brooklyn, N. Y. He is widely known as the author of several standard textbooks, among which are "American Literature", "English Literature", and "Correct Pronunciation". He has edited many of the classics used in school work. A graduate of the class of 1876, he also received from Middlebury the degree of A. M. in 1879 and of Litt. D. in 1914. He took his Ph. D. at Yale in 1878. Dr. Abernethy was for a year a member of the faculty at Middlebury. His home is now in Burlington.

Dr. Robert D. French, a graduate of Yale and a member of the English facuty of that institution, will pay the School a brief visit, lecturing on "Poetry for the Undergraduate". Dr. French's colleagues regard him as one of the best teachers of English at Yale.

Mr. Reuben Peterson, Jr., one of the rising young writers of New York, will pay the School a week-end visit and will speak on "Breaking into Print". He is a graduate of the University of Michigan and the Columbia School of Journalism. He has had experience as an editorial writer and as a special article writer for The Springfield Union, The New York Tribune, and other papers. He was assistant editor of Harper's Pictorial Library of the World War. His name is familiar to readers of Life, Judge, Munsey's, Everybody's, Harper's, The New York Evening Post, and The New York Sun. His work to date has been mostly light verse, humorous, topical and satirical, as well as short essays of a humorous nature.

Many Special Guests

Among the special guests who are expected to visit the School this summer are Professor George P. Baker, of Harvard University, founder and head of The 47 Workshop, Doctor Henry A. Beers, Yale's well known writer and literary critic, and Professor Charles B. Wright, Professor- Emeritus of Rhetoric and English Literature at Middlebury, the first dean of the English School.

COLLEGE PRESIDENTS VOTE DRASTIC SPORT CHANGES

of the college presidents do away with the practice of competitive bidding for coaches among the different colleges, and as well will practically abolish high paid coaches in the institutions represented in this conference.

Presidents Optimistic

The resolutions closely resemble in general intent recommendations suggested several years ago by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, recommendations which have never been widely acted upon. The resolutions were passed after the presidents had thoroughly discussed them for several hours. Many voiced their surprise at the speedy agreement on a basis of action. In order for definite action to be taken the resolutions must be approved and adopted by the various faculties and boards of trustees before they become operative. It is expected that all the colleges represented will act favorably toward the proposed changes.

To Respect Contracts

"The agreement reached at Springfield is in the nature rather of a declaration of future policy than a definite program," said President Moody in discussing the results of the conference with a Campus reporter, "no changes are contemplated before 1923 in any case—and all contracts are to be respected which in the case of several colleges, Middlebury among them, will postpone even further the change in the position of the coach. It is a step which will tend to unify the whole question of athletics. It will do away with expensive competition, which is deadly to amateur sport and will make it more probable that the best team will win, than is the case now.

"It is a step", declared President Moody in concluding the interview, "which we firmly believe will be welcomed by all genuine lovers of college life when viewed squarely. The only criticisms which up to the present time have come to our notice have been based on misapprehensions concerning it."
